

DIARY OF A FATHER

Tijen grows up sheltered in a small house outside of the city. Her parents shower her with love and affection because they had longed for a child. The wealthy neighbor's son just returned from the United States. The two young people are first united by friendship, then by great love and they eventually decide to get married.

Tijen's father is not exactly thrilled by his daughter's decision and opposes the marriage for reasons known only to him. He advises his daughter against this step. Tijen defies her father's wishes and moves into the villa of her future husband.

Out of worry and heartbreak for his daughter, the father falls ill with cancer and dies of it. During his last days, however, he writes a diary describing his feelings and revealing the secret.

Tijen, too, will soon find out that her father is right and witnesses her future husband cheating on her with her best friend. She returns home, but it is too late. Her father is on his deathbed and dies in her arms.

Tough circumstances force mother and daughter to sell their house. They move into an apartment in the city, where Tijen also finds work.

Tijen is a beautiful, intelligent, and amiable young woman and quickly finds a group of friends. She also has young male admirers.

On a rainy day, she misses the city bus, which is annoying for her because she has an important business appointment to keep.

As if by miracle, a car stops next to her and a young man offers his help. He drives her to her destination. Tijen thanks him, and they go separate ways. In a large shopping center, she again comes across the young stranger who drove her to her important appointment. From then on, they grow closer. After her big disappointment, Tijen is careful with her emotions but by and by, she comes to care for him deeply.

Although they have become closer and Tijen seems to have found her great love, she soon realizes that on the day they met a second time by chance other strange things occurred that scare her.
